

Communicating with a tree

Hey, I hope all of you are very well and looking forward to this video I put together especially for you on this great event.

It is an extract from one of my Premium Courses, called Spiritual Nature.

So let us get into it.

As Earth have been helped through the quantum leap by her cohabitants in the solar system and the galaxy, now it is time to perform our duty to ourselves, to each other, the planet and the galaxy.

Despite of all the popular understanding, every soul, living on Earth is a Lightworker. Light is something without which we cannot exist. We are born into it, and it is the first thing we embrace. Light is a Fire element that derives from the universe. It feeds all the organic, living energies on the planet, brings us life elixir and the knowledge of the macrocosm.

Using light properly and become a healing channel for it, requires conscious living that starts with the comprehension of its existence and importance. Nevertheless, today we will learn about nature, mainly trees and their role in the elevated light-working community.

Before we plunge into it, there is a useful information, I would like you to take in. Human beings are not the most intelligent organic energy on the planet. Vegetation is, especially that of trees.

Although we focus on trees at the moment, it doesn't mean that all of the mentioned qualities are unique to them but generally cover the characteristics of vegetation.

Nevertheless, the one naturalistic, trees perform better than the rest of the plants, is communication. They have a sensitive radar system that is capable of connecting to high frequency energies in other dimensions and penetrate time zones, such as past and future. Experiments with a lie detector attached to an oak tree, have proven that others, even thousands of miles away, would hear its cry when cut out. This high sensitivity opens a free learning channel for earthlings who want to elevate their existence and become conscious light workers.

Since they are fast energies, their clairvoyance and psychic abilities are in place and they use these tools without further ado. Earthlings possess these capabilities also however, the hard layers of upbringing, society and religions prevent them from working naturally.

Trees are the father figures in nature. They have a specific function to bring about energy change, not only through their rooting system and the symbolic reference, but they also have a telepathic network within what has been and what will be.

There are tree-families with a mother and the father tree. They always work in territorial pattern so there always be 2-3 trees at the point of local harmony or disharmony within the area.

As a light worker it is important for you to have a rapport with the trees. When you look for the trees you want to work with there will be a darker and a softer sounds relevant to the male and female.

Every tree has an entity who looks after the tree and works with it. This entity provides the elixir for tree.

When a tree is nearing its natural end, the entity gets the tree ready for moving. From this time on, it wouldn't work for the harmony of the surrounding but take on as much slow energy as possible to save Earth and its inhabitants from it. It separates itself from the group and if it was a prominent tree, it would find a successor to carry on with the work.

There are trees like the oak tree that grow over geopathic stresspoints and act as collection focus. Prominent trees have a much larger auric field than others therefore they are able to collect more rubbish. They absorb individually cultivated and mass produced slow energy thoughtforms for it is also their duty on Earth.

Trees hit by natural disasters are usually having a lot of slow energies and nature helps close these energies up to send it to the universe for dissolving process.

The trees that are killed by lightening go through an evolutionary process and will be able to collect the slow energy for the whole area.

I would like to remind you here that there are no such things as positive and negative energies in the sense they have been fashionably used. Building energies are always fast and withholding energies are slow. More about it in the course.

Trees help humanity a lot. Probably that is why they have been killed by the power-minded snails, meaning the rainforests are wiped off gradually. One would think it is for money. However, money is a false God to replace other man-made statues. The reason behind every killing and demolishing work is knowledge. Today, I will not follow this train of thought, for it is not the purpose of this video.

So let us get back to trees. Since they work as transmitters from the universe, losing a tree result in oxygen loss and a dismissal of a valuable colleague.

Communicating with a tree requires a similar quality in energy, meaning knowledge. Therefore, a cleansing exercise would be a good step before trying on your communication skills with a tree. Cleansing removes all the residue from body, mind and spirit, created by thoughts, unfinished businesses, food intake, and interrelations with other energies around.

On this page, there is an Earth element meditation to serve this purpose. Download it and use it to your advantage.

After finishing your cleansing exercise, you are ready to find the perfect tree to converse with. It might not be the one you like the most and it might not even be the biggest or oldest.

Now, that your energy field is cleansed, your senses will become sharper.

Open your ears and close your eyes. Work with the sounds around you. Differentiate them and try to follow their tunes one by one.

When you are doing this exercise for a while, your hearing device will receive an impulse from a tree in your vicinity. It is a deep, masculine tone, without much melody. Follow the sound and find the tree from which it originates.

Greet the tree. While you are doing it, let it run through your mind, what the tree means to you. First and utmost, it cleans the air and produces oxygen. The vital ingredient to your survival. We have those lung diseases due to the contaminated air and our utter disrespect for trees. Also, a tree is an excellent educator therefor, if you intend to learn from one, you need to build a good rapport with it. Ask, how he was. Listen for the answers. Whatever comes to your mind will be the answer for only your subconscious is capable to receive it at this point. Ask, if it would be happy to communicate with you.

If the reply is yes, ask for a piece of bark or a small twig as the representation of acceptance. Then find a small area on its trunk, at about your eye-level and imagine that a thin ray of energy starts from there and ends at your Solar Plexus. It is one palm width above your navel.

When you are securely connected, communication can start.

Bear in mind that helping you is a friendly act from the tree and not a duty. So do what it takes. Meaning that befriend it gradually. You will not regret it, believe me!

When finished the chat, release the energy ray from your Solar Plexus, visualising it leaving your body. Then thank the tree and bid farewell. On the course of the friendship you can figure out a name for your new friend.

Visit as often as possible.

Enjoy!

Have a nice day!
