Dikshya began her career in the medical field as an intern at Manmohan Memorial Hospital. During her three-month internship, she focused on learning the ins and outs of medicines and pharmacy practices. Today, as a professional pharmacist at the same hospital, Dikshya plays a vital role in managing the Outpatient Department (OPD) and assisting with emergency cases as needed.

_Dikshya

Reflecting on her journey, she highlights the transition from intern to professional. While her internship primarily involved observing and familiarizing herself with the equipment, her current role allows her to actively contribute to the team's responsibilities.

Now working full time, she is satisfied with her steady salary, which helps her support her family. She credits patience as a key quality she has developed along her journey. Looking ahead, Dikshya is excited about her future in pharmacy, eager to continue learning and helping patients in the process.
