PALM KERNEL MEAL

Palm Kernel Meal (PKM) is a by-product of palm kernel processing with a content of 45-46% of palm kernel. With its nutritional composition and relatively large production, PKM has potential as a feed ingredient, both for ruminants and non-ruminants. Although PKM can be used as animal feed, it turns out that there are problems found in PKM, namely the quality of PKM varies depending on PKM oil content and contamination of oil palm shells, and the amino acid content is not balanced, in addition, the digestibility value of PKM is also quite low, both dry matter digestibility as well as protein and amino acids. Therefore, when using high amounts of PKM, the composition of the feed must be arranged so that it is based on digestible nutrients.

Specification:

- Moisture content 5.6%
- Protein content 15.45%
- Carbohydrate 46.84%
- Calorie 373,92 Cal/ 100 gram
- Fat content 10.39%
- Profat (Protein + Fat) 25.84%
- Ash content 5%
- Raw fiber 13.08%
- Oil/ Shell 17.6%
- Sand/ Silica 0.51%
