Paper is a raw material that leaves room for all possibilities, it's the perfect tool to let your imagination run wild!

Children use drawing to give shape to creatures invented around the theme of births and metamorphoses. Kraft paper is then used to give life to these creatures and images which they will then animate by learning the principles and techniques of puppet manipulation.

The workshop ends with the performance of small group scenes invented by the children to present the characters that have been invented.

Materials are provided by Théâtre de l'Heure Bleue. It is recommended that children wear soft, comfortable clothing. The children will be able to take their creations home.

**This workshop can also be extended to explore the processes in more detail and can include a presentation of Laura Elands' creative process to explain her artistic approach.*

This workshop was developed during a PAG project (Global Artistic Projects) in connection with the Musée-du Feutre de Mouzon (France) in the schools of Brévilly, Douzy, Margut and Matton-Clémency, financed by the DRAC Grand Est (Directorate of Regional Cultural Affairs). The photos below and on the following page illustrate the end-of-project presentation with the students.
