

The final volume of Jeffrey Archer's prison diaries covers the period of his transfer from Wayland to his eventual release on parole in July 2003. It includes a shocking account of the traumatic time he spent in the notorious Lincoln jail and the events that led to his incarceration there, and throws light on a system that is close to breaking point.

PRAISE FOR THE PRISON DIARIES:

'The finest thing that he has ever written . . . so clear and crisp is the prose, a vivid and almost "live" account which bubbles with Dickensian detail and a Shavian sense of outrage . . . riveting'

Independent on Sunday

'The books form the most detailed and illuminating account of life spent under lock and key since Dostoyevsky'

Mail on Sunday

'Gruesome, touching, sharply written . . . they are the best thing Archer has written in years'

Sunday Telegraph
