History

1707
The history of the Kura Hulanda quarter begins in 1707 with the granting of parcels on the westside of the St. Anna Bay. On Sir's Oroblanda the buildings came about quite gradually. The street pattern in this area developed at random because of the lack of town planning.

1875
In the middle of the 19th century the grounds on the hill slowly developed into a residential area. Mansions in neoclassical style emerged from 1875 onward, making the beginning of the prime of the Kura Hulanda area. Economic activities increased around the harbor leading to population growth.

1970
In the second half of the 20th century fundamental changes affected the atmosphere in the quarter. Around 1970 the Androsweg was built across the hill. Hulanda from in the quarter moved closer to the harbor. A hotbed of dis was little left.

In 2001 the Kura Hulanda area was made a special zone. That would have...
