Artificial intelligence is the latest of many communication technologies that have shaped and re-shaped human learning.

Like before, the coming of new technologies challenges us as learners, students and educators to explore, adapt, reject, and critique.

Our Fall 2023 Roundtable continues conversations from earlier WLS conference events on learning, education and media literacy.

Speakers from Northern and Southern Europe, North and South America, Asia and Africa join in shaping a learning & research agenda. There is still time to join in:

Welcome

Those of you who receive this extended Roundtable program for September 26th - 27th now have a particular invitation to join in networking up a set of research proposals.

We began sending these invitations out about six months ago. Some will join in the proposal work even if they were hindered from attending on September 26th - 27th.

The general framework and a status report will be provided at the beginning of this workshop.

Hopefully, ideas from here will also germinate in the open Roundtable on September 28th.

Day 1 of the workshop will be dedicated to outlining three proposal schemes. Please confer the next page.

Day 2 of the workshop will be centered on outlining and discussing the outlines of a proposed book. At this point, the editorship resides with Cathy Casserly, Donna Kidwell and Oddgeir Tveiten. This may change, depending on the direction of the coming talks.

Please see the list of participants at the final page of this program. Everyone has been individually invited.

--

Thanks to everyone for taking the time off to join these workshop days. It is much appreciated.

Project members who are not present but will be kept updated:
