Leader of the al-Haqq movement, Dr. Abduljalil al-Singace, continues his hunger strike protesting ill-treatment in Jau Prison. He is currently on day 134 of his strike.

Dr. al-Singace's family expressed concern over his well-being following reports detailing his declining health. Doctors recommended that al-Singace be transferred to a BDF hospital, however the prison administration refused to take al-Singace after he refused to wear the prison's uniform.

Both Dr. al-Singace and the Secretary-General of al-Haqq refused to wear prison uniforms, emphasizing that they are not "criminals."

During a call with his family, al-Singace explained that being taken to a BDF hospital is the responsibility of the administration, and he insisted on not wearing the prison's uniform. Eventually, authorities transferred al-Singace to the hospital in his normal clothes. He was brought back from the BDF hospital at 4 A.M.

At the hospital Dr. al-Singace had an IV, as well as blood tests showing that his white blood cell count decreased again. An ear and nose condition was also confirmed, but the authorities are stalling to perform the required surgical operation.

His tests also showed:

- Blood pressure: 65/101
- Sugar: 4.5
- While Blood Cells Count: 2.8
