Sources stated that Ali Mohammed Haji, a detainee from Duraz being held in Jau Central Prison, is suffering from poor health.

Haji's family said that they're concerned over his wellbeing in the harsh prison conditions, which he and other prisoners have endured since March.

Haji called his family two days ago and informed them that he is suffering from both a headache and swollen face. He did not tell his family any further details. Sources from inside the prison confirmed Haji's report.

Prisoners in Jau Prison are subjected to a range of violations including beatings, verbal insults of religion and beliefs, the prevention of performing religious rituals, and restrictions on visits and bathroom access.
