

AEUP Association
of European University Presses

AEUP

Association of European University Presses
Att. Emmanuelle Corne, executive officer
c/o Fondation Maison des sciences de l'homme
190 Avenue de France
CS n° 71345 / 75648 PARIS CEDEX 13
France

Email info@aeup.eu

Web www.aeup.eu

Twitter @aeup_info

High quality institutional publishing in the scholarly field faces changing demands among target groups such as authors, editors, libraries and readers ...

... the changing needs of scholarship in the digital age call for university presses to transfer their established value, their experience and commitment to quality into new forms of publishing.

AEUP IS HERE TO

- enhance the visibility of its members
- support members at book fairs and conferences
- run and improve the joint catalogue with aggregated metadata and sales information
- facilitate communication between members
- share knowledge on scholarly publishing, future trends and infrastructures
- strengthen our common mission to support up-to-date scholarly publishing

ABOUT AEUP

AEUP is a network of scholarly presses and publishing initiatives across Europe who are affiliated with a university or an academic institution. AEUP elects its board at yearly meetings. Members are encouraged to join into the work of the association.

WHO CAN BECOME AEUP MEMBER?

- Scholarly publishers, publishing initiatives or presses run by or controlled by a university, research institution or scholarly association can become full members, given that have an established reviewing system and/or an active editorial board,
- presses collaborating with a university or research institution can become associate members without voting rights, institutions interested to follow up on scholarly publishing can join AEUP as patron members without voting rights.

MEET AEUP MEMBERS

Meet us at national and international events such as Frankfurt book fair in Germany. See our website for an up-to-date member list.

