UNIVERSITY OF COPENHAGEN

Co-creative Methods and/in the Digital Dimension

The research project Private Lives – Embedding Sociality at the Digital Kitchen Tables revisits Marianne Gullestad's classic ethnography Kitchen-Table Society from 1984 in a digital day and age.

PI Marianna E. Lien, and post.doc researchers Cecilia G. Salinas and Tom Bratrud, Oslo University, share the methods they develop in dialogue with the field

Ethnographic Exploratory, Department of Anthropology, room 4.1.12

Ethnographic Exploratory is a physical and virtual space furthering collaborative and experimental research and teaching activities at Department of Anthropology - for students, researchers, and guests. EE takes its point of departure in 'the ethnographic' and it is therefore closely affiliated with both anthropology as a discipline and oriented toward other disciplines with interest in the ethnographic. Dialogue and collaboration with other disciplines at the Faculty of Social Sciences, the Arts, and an exposure to a broader public are a part of EE's aims and ethos.
