

Here come the Danish soldiers - End

The solution to the "enigma"

After my reproduction of Billedbladet's article Here come the Danish soldiers from 1942 saw the light of day, our former member Helge Scheunchen assisted me with the background information necessary to solve the puzzle.

The main characters

The architect: Niels Hegelund

The son: Hans Hegelund

The craftsman: Hugo Bülow-Madsen

The collection

Niels and Hans Hegelund had a large and impressive collection of e.g. Heyde figurines, including a number of beautiful special figurines by e.g. the Russian Czar, and then of course the figures shown in the pictures. The collection was then completely or partially disposed of, as the Hegelunds' interests changed, e.g. for model railways.

Helge Scheunchen also says that Hugo Bülow-Madsen was quite a handy person, which his figures clearly testify to.

Chakoten anno 1946

The very first issue of Chakoten - a duplicate folio sheet, folded once - contains a membership list that numbered a total of 13 people, and the magazine announcing that the next issue would include a list of "corresponding members" as well as "members abroad".

Niels Hegelund, Arkitekt Nystedvej 28, Valby.	rundmassive	Figurer	Danmark
			moderne
Hans Hegelund, Nystedvej 28, Valby	"	"	"	"
Hugo Bülow-Madsen, Hovedvejen 85,II,Glostrup	"	"	England
			moderne

The protagonists of the little story thus form a large part of Chakoten's active membership at the time.

The first edition of Chakoten's mark.

Closing

Thanks to Helge Scheunchen for his benevolent interest in my little project, which thus also sheds a bit of light on Chakoten's early history.

Per Finsted

