Föjer, Alfred (1878 - 1957)

A PRICELESS TREASURE

In the "good old days" or a few decades ago, Eslöv was the big city you had to visit, either with your own car or with the blue buses. Eslöv was the city where you could find anything you seek for. If you couldn't find it at Granlunds, there were several shops to choose from.

On April 10, 1902, Alfred Föjer opened his photo studio, and became a well-known photographer in the village.

In the archive we find pictures taken from the beginning of the 20th century - portraits of wealthy people and families from Röstånga, Billinge and Ask.

For over 40 years, Föjer immortalized several generations of the inhabitants of Eslöv - baptisms, school graduations, confirmations, students, weddings, 50th birthday parties and funerals.

Just over 100 years later, his successor, Stig Ekander, donated a large collection of just over a million negatives from the studio to Eslöv county. The collection consists of negatives from all shots from the beginning until the company ceased in 2006. In 2007, work began on to digitize these. In the picture above, we see Alfred Föjer with his wife Frida, who gave her name to the district Fridasro in Eslöv.
