When assessing IBG Group AB (publ) future development, it is important to consider relevant risks. Each investor must make its own assessment of the effect of these risks by considering all available information released in connection with this offering. Historical returns are no guarantee of future returns. An investment in securities / funds can both increase and decrease in value and it is not certain that you will get back the invested capital.

Once a stock is bought, the principal cannot be refunded, but it can be traded. The par value of the stock rises and falls, resulting in a price difference, which means that the profit and loss of the holder changes, which can generate income after resale. The principal cannot be refunded after the stock is purchased, because the principal of the stock has been invested in the operation of the company. After the stock holder buys the stock, one will naturally become a shareholder of the company and enjoy the rights of the company's dividends, etc., but the principal has been invested during company's production and operation, thus it is consumed and cannot be taken back.
