Using one of the most iconic symbols of London the “bus”, several routes are chosen in and around London.

A vivid bold colour palette has been chosen to give an animated pop art style. The grey road links one image to the next.

5 rows of 5 buses, totalling 25, give an interesting perspective of a variety of routes and apart from being a fun piece, the idea is that the viewer may know some of the bus routes and can reminisce with their journey on the route master.

It is possible to change a couple of number buses if the viewer’s “bus” is not in the piece.

The piece is an edition of 50.

As with other pieces in this range, the overall artistic aim is to create a composition that enhances and invigorates the senses through colour.
