THE MAIN ACTIVITIES

1

Ring Stack is an enjoyable team building activity where teams use trust and communication to guide throwers to lean to place the rings.

2

Tower of Hanoi is an intelligent team puzzle to encourage problem solving, planning and execution.

3

Jump Rope is a physically demanding team building exercise that encourages collaboration, dexterity and team coordination. Two players must hold the rope on either side and swing the rope in a large circle in order for the rope to pass under the feet and over the head of the players jumping in the middle.

4

Water Balloon Volleyball is an amusing, yet competitive team building activity to encourage fun, togetherness, and team spirit.

5

Minefield is a non-verbal team building activity to encourage strategy, risk-taking, communication and leadership.

6

In Islands, participants use communication, support and team strategy, to move over the islands in the fastest time.

7

Rope Stretcher

Participants put trust in your team to carry you over a distance and collect as many balls as you can in the allotted time.

8

Catapult

This fun outdoor team building and design activity asks teams to make a bamboo catapult and fire balls as far as possible.

9

Blindfold Puzzle

Players must assemble a puzzle by wearing a blindfold which encourages active listening skills.

10

Balloon Balance is a fun and physically challenging indoor team building activity to enhance goal setting, creativity and out-of-the-box-thinking skills.

THE THEMES

LEARNING WITH

PROCESS
ORIENTED

The objective of this program is to deliver a fun, yet meaningful team building experience with one or several of the following learning objectives.

- A) Leadership
- B) Strategic planning
- C) Communication
- D) Problem solving
- E) Creativity
- F) Achieving Targets
- G) Dealing with failure
- H) Team conflict
- I) Improving trust
- J) High performance

The delivery of each activity comes in four phases. Participants will go through a briefing phase, a strategy phase, a game play phase and debriefing phase.

During the briefing phase, the facilitator will outline the scope and objective of the game, explain rules and regulations and answer participant's questions.

During the strategy phase, teams brainstorm and discuss their approach to the game, decide on their strategy and ensures all participants are aligned behind a common objective. The objective is written down on the flip chart. Questions for clarification can be asked during this phase.

Phase 3, the game play is conducted outside the meeting room. The blow of the whistle indicates the start and end of the game. The facilitator may interfere if rules are not obeyed. No more questions are allowed.

In Phase 3, each team tries to reach their objective they have set in phase 2.

Phase 4, the debriefing, is best conducted indoors because worksheets are handed out. The first two minutes are given to relax, introspect, and take notes before the facilitator rises important questions about process, achieving targets and conflict within the team. In this phase the facilitator ensures the learning objectives are explored deeply and that the debate remains balanced and sophisticated.

Final summary is conducted before the end of the program typically indoors and the facilitator / trainer may write important learning points on a flip chart for participants to take home.

Teams can be re-shuffled after each main activity or remain the same throughout the program.

Two venues close to each other are ideal, an indoor venue (for briefing and debriefing) and an outdoor venue (for the game play).

If an outdoor venue is not available for game play, then the entire program should be conducted indoors.

TEAM BONDING, FUN AND COMPETITION OUTCOME ORIENTED

The delivery of each activity comes in three phases. Participants will go through a briefing phase, a strategy phase and a game play phase. No formal debriefing is conducted at the end of each activity. Winning is paramount, process is not so important.

A short, informal debriefing is conducted before the end of the event, whereby participants share their experience and leave the event motivated, energized and in good spirit.

In the outcome-oriented theme, participants are split into teams and the teams remain throughout the program. Winning an activity means scoring points and points are accumulated throughout the program. The team with the most points is the winning team and shall receive a prize.

Only one venue is necessary, either indoors or outdoors.
