This book is © Lonnie Readioff 2020, though the original charts that this book is derived from were first produced in New Musical Express Magazine (1970-1979).

The book is presented on an as-is basis. While every effort has been made to make sure it is free from defects I will not be held responsible if it does nasty things to your computer. Though it shouldn't. But if it does, it's not my fault.

Notes on the text

As with any book of this nature there are mistakes inside its pages. I would be stupid to think that there were none. So, if you spot a mistake and let me know, I'll correct it and you'll get your name in the book. Drop me an email at lonnie@thechartbook.co.uk and I'll check out the error, though I also welcome praise and criticism, both for the book and the layout of the book.

As far as can be tested this book is virus free, though it may contain traces of nuts.

Introduction

The charts used in this volume are the charts compiled and produced by New Musical Express, and covers their third decade of chart compilation. The chart stayed as a Top 30 for the entire decade (It had increased to this size in April 1956 and would only change again in 1983) and listed mostly the Top 30 best selling singles of the week; EP's did chart occasionally but, unlike the 1960's, albums did not being firmly religated to their own chart.

In 1969 the BBC, Music Week and the BPI had formed their own chart designed to be the Industry Standard and the official National chart for the UK, compiled by the British Market Reseach Bureau. This Top 50 had it's teething troubles but by the start of the 1970's those had mostly settled down.

The 1970's where the last full decade when NME would compile their own chart. In 1988 they, together with Melody Maker, stopped compiling their own and took the MRIB chart. Newspapers still printed the NME chart and it was still one of the most widly read charts although this had, with changing landscape, shrunk by the end of the 1970's as Radio 1 and the Official chart had taken over.

Scanning through the tracks that charted during the 1970's there are many which we now consider standards (Slade and Merry Xmas Everybody for example) together with a good proportion of tracks – or artists – being revived and given a new lisee of life. This volume also contains the first major music death as Elvis Presley died in 1977. The massive influx of his hits where down to whatever the record shops had as old stock and whatever could be pressed quickly enough to meet the demand. This was less of an issue thirty years later when Michael Jackson died in 2009 as downloads had taken hold on the chart, but at this point a physical release was still required. CD was for the 1980's (although the CD Single was really for the 1990's) so the 1970's was filled, as was the 1960's, with Vinyl 7" records.

Chart Milestones

3 Jan 1970	The first Top 30, compiled and published by New Musical Express, used in this volume.
15 Dec 1973	Printing error results in no number 23 being printed for this week. No mention of this is made in the following issue so the position remains unknown.
29 Dec 1973	No chart published. Previous weeks duplicated.
1 Jan 1977	No chart published. Previous weeks duplicated.
31 Dec 1977	No chart published. Previous weeks duplicated.
30 Dec 1978	No chart published. Previous weeks duplicated.
29 Dec 1979	No chart published. Previous weeks duplicated. This is the last chart used in this volume. The next new chart was printed on 12 January 1980.

There are little in the way of Chart Milestones to report for this volume, as the New Musical Express expanded their chart to a Top 30 in April 1956 and it remained at this size unti April 1983 when it became a Top 50.

Various publication errors, including incorrect positions, have been identified and corrected by reference to the original chart issues. Corrections to titles, label details and other information by reference to internet searchers and copies of the original records.
