This book is © Lonnie Radioff 2017 and 2022, though the original charts that this book is derived from were first produced in New Musical Express Magazine (1960) and Record Retailer (1960-1969). From February 1969 the charts are considered the official ones and were compiled by the British Market Research Bureau. The book is presented on an as-is basis. While every effort has been made to make sure it is free from defects, I will not be held responsible if it does nasty things to your computer. Though it shouldn't. But if it does, it's not my fault.

Notes on the text

As with any book of this nature there are mistakes inside its pages. I would be stupid to think that there were none. So, if you spot a mistake and let me know, I'll correct it and you'll get your name in the book. Drop me an email at lonnie@thechartbook.co.uk and I'll check out the error, though I also welcome praise and criticism, both for the book and the layout of the book.

As far as can be tested this book is virus free, though it may contain traces of nuts.

Introduction

The charts used in this volume are the charts now considered the official charts of the 1960's, as used on Pick Of The Pops on BBC Radio 2 and as used by the Official Charts Company. In truth though there simply was no official chart, unless it was by word of mouth. Certainly, the New Musical Express chart was the most talked about with Melody Maker a close second, although perhaps winning the battle by the middle of the decade.

Alan Smith has written much about the 1960's charts and I won't copy his work here other than to say that it is worth a read. (UKMix Link). Record Retailer began in 1959 and went weekly in March 1960 and with it began a singles albums and EP chart. It sampled, according to Alan's research, 30 shops. I am a mathematician but even with only a rudimentary grasp of statistics it should be clear that a sample size of 30 for a national chart is terribly small, particularly when it is considered that there were well over 1,500 places that sold records in the U.K. in that period. Melody Maker proudly declared it sampled over 100 shops in 1962 and both NME and Melody Maker went over 250 during the decade. It would be the 1980's before the official chart managed this level of coverage.

So how come Record Retailer was chosen as the official chart? And why?

In 1977 the charts were 25 years old and a book was issued listing those records which made the charts. This was the Guinness Book Of British Hit Singles and it made sense to use NME for 1952-1960 and the BMRB chart from 1969 onwards (of which more later). That chart was printed in Record Mirror, Record Retailer and used by the BBC so it was the official chart, as we shall see, at least eventually. But for 1960-1969 Record Retailers small sample Top 50 was used simply because it was a consistent size. History is decided by the victors and on tenuous grounds sometimes as this shows.

What should have happened is that NME should have continued till at least 1965 and then Melody Maker taken over. Numerous charts (Top Pops, Music Echo, etc.) were created by various newspapers and magazines but NME was the one which mattered, with Melody Maker a close second. In the case of NME it was the one people followed and the most popular newspaper. In the early 1960's Billboard in America printed a selection of charts from other countries and chose NME for the UK. By the middle of the decade it was using Record Retailers, but largely due to publisher ownership than another reason, so at least until the mid 1960's NME was the UK chart.

But, rightly or not (and though this author tries to give a balanced picture I can't help but say wrongly in my opinion and based on the facts I have to hand) Record Retailer is credited as being the Official chart for the 1960's. Which throws up some interesting questions. Was Please Please Me a number one? Did My Old Man's A Dustman enter at number 1? These are important questions to which the answer is no if you were a subscriber to Record Retailer or the chart books. And also if you read this book.

Chart Milestones

- 1 Jan 1960 The first Top 30, compiled and published by New Musical Express, is used in this volume. This chart contained several tied positions (8, 17, 19, 28) with two (19 and 28) combining three records.
- 4 Mar 1960 Last NME Top 30 used in this book.
- 10 Mar 1960 First Record Retailer Top 50 used this book. Ties are no longer allowed in the chart and until February 1969 only three weeks will have ties. Chart is published on a Thursday.
- 22 Apr 1965 Position 37 is tied with two records sharing the position.
- 30 Dec 1965 No chart published.
- 21 Apr 1966 First Breakers chart used in this book, listed as "Up And Coming", showing 13 records in alphabetical order. No labels or catalogue numbers shown this week and no positions are shown. Sometimes they are shown in alphabetical order and sometimes they are not. The first chart is shown below.

- 12 May 1966 First breakers chart to show label and catalogue numbers. All would show this information from now on.
- 8 Sep 1966 No Breakers chart published.
- 15 Sep 1966 Breakers numbered 1-7, with the rest in alphabetical order.
- 22 Sep 1966 The listing of the Breakers charts reverts to being unnumbered.

- 16 Aug 1967 Breakers listed next to the Top 50 for the first time. Previously they have been listed randomly throughout the newspaper.

- 18 Sep 1968 The breakers list is now titled "Breakers".
- 25 Sep 1968 Breakers now numbered from 51 onwards.
- 25 Dec 1968 No breakers chart published.
- 1 Jan 1969 No breakers chart published.
- 12 Feb 1969 The chart is now compiled as the official UK chart with a footnote "CHART compiled for RR and BBC by British Market Research Bureau". From now until 25 June each chart has tied positions again. The most at a single position was on 12 Feb when 5 records tied at number 45. No breakers listed this week.
- 19 Feb 1969 Breakers chart is now not numbered again.
- 29 Mar 1969 Incorrect single chart printed (Positions 33-50 contain the error). Correct chart found and used in this book.
- 9 Apr 1969 Incorrect chart printed. Correct chart found and used in this book. No breakers published.
- 16 Apr 1969 The chart this week was printed in error and has been corrected for this volume. The error occurs in positions 42-50. The Breakers contains three entries as printed, but the chart reflected the incorrect positions of the main chart. When corrected, no corrected Breakers is available, so the incorrect chart is used, with an amendment. Number 2 was listed as Aquarius but this charted that week on the main chart and so is removed from the listing.
- 4 Jun 1969 No breakers chart published.
- 25 Jun 1969 Last chart with tied positions as the norm. No breakers chart published.
- 2 Jul 1969 Final breakers chart used in this volume.
- 9 Aug 1969 Record Retailer changes publication date to a Saturday. It remained as such until 2015 when the chart compilation week changed from Sunday to Saturday to Friday to Thursday. But more on that in a later volume.
- 23 Aug 1969 Number 43 is tied with two records sharing the position.
- 6 Sep 1969 Number 48 is tied with two records sharing the position. This is the last tied position until 6 May 1972.
- 27 Dec 1969 Chart not published, but it was compiled and is used in this book.

Various publication errors, including incorrect positions, have been identified and corrected by reference to the original chart issues. Corrections to titles, label details and other information by reference to internet searchers and copies of the original records.

Title Listing

This is an alphabetical listing of titles, sorted by their first letters. Any title starting with "A" or "The" is listed under the second word. The peak and the year of first chart entry of the title is shown. Where the same title charted in the same year, the entries are sorted by the highest position reached by that track. In the unlikely event of two or more records reaching the same position, they are listed alphabetically by artist, although the artist is not sorted alphabetically.
