Danish Cx & teknik joins XPartners

XPartners continues its Nordic growth journey and now welcomes Danish company Cx & teknik to the group. The acquisition strengthens XPartners' capabilities in technical property consulting and energy efficiency, with a strong focus on sustainable and high-performing buildings.

Founded in 2011, Cx & teknik has established itself as a leading player in commissioning, functional testing, and energy optimization. The company employs around 15 people and provides engineering and consulting services that ensure building systems function optimally – from design and installation to operation. With deep technical expertise, the company helps clients reduce energy consumption, enhance sustainability, and achieve long-term operational reliability.

“With Cx & teknik, we gain a company with exceptional technical competence, a clear focus on sustainability, and strong customer relationships. They are experts in an area that is becoming increasingly important, and we see great potential in developing together,” says Sonny Mirborn, CEO of XPartners.

Cx & teknik works with some of Denmark’s largest players in the construction and installation sectors. Their assignments span both new builds and major renovation projects, where they act as a trusted and independent partner. As part of XPartners, the company will gain access to a network of like-minded specialist firms and new opportunities for knowledge sharing and collaboration.

“Joining XPartners opens up exciting new opportunities for both our team and our clients. We’ll retain our focus and independence while gaining the strength of a larger network. It’s an exciting next step in our journey, alongside other specialists who share our ambition,” says Henrik Slott, CEO of Cx & teknik.
